Your Bold Leadership

Together, we go boldly.

At the University at Buffalo, being bold means discovering better medicines, inventing faster computers and smarter materials, inspiring world-class performances and solving society's most complex challenges.

It means turning hard-working students into thoughtful, global leaders—year after year—guided at each step by award-winning faculty.

It means helping millions of citizens around the world improve their environment, their health, their prosperity and their communities, as we continue to make an immeasurable impact on Buffalo-Niagara—and the world.

AMANDIP CHEEMA, third-year Jacobs School of Medicine and Biomedical Sciences student

“Someone I didn’t know gave me this money and it taught me to pay it forward. In the grand scheme of things, that’s what I’m here for. That’s why I chose medicine—to help others.”

When Aman had the chance to travel to Panama during his first-year spring break, he jumped at it. With help from the Bhayana Family Scholarship, he was able to partner with Floating Doctors, a volunteer organization headquartered in Panama that offers health care and medical supplies to isolated regions. They traveled by boat to several rural coastal communities to provide primary care to patients in the makeshift clinics they established at each site. Aman credits the donor’s gift for his willingness to give back.

“Going to Tanzania was transformative in so many ways. Through my experiences and ongoing reflections, I realized how important community is in shaping our choices and behaviors.”

As an undergraduate biological sciences major, Lyndsey was part of a group of students that traveled to the Mara Region of Tanzania for a life-changing study-abroad course. Then, as an alumna, she returned in summer 2018 to contribute even more. Through studying about and interacting with local villagers, community leaders and educators, she gained new insights into the region’s ethical, social and environmental challenges. This year’s Tanzanian trip was made possible by generous donors to the UB Fund.

YOUR GIFT MATTERS.

DENNIS MAHER, artist and clinical assistant professor in the School of Architecture and Planning

“[Assembly House 150] is a place of magic.”

Dennis often involves his UB students in Assembly House 150 projects. He uses the former church as a project space, lab and training center where adult students learn employable skills and UB architecture students learn firsthand the art of architectural design. Dennis, whose work has been exhibited worldwide, taps into architecture’s deep history of visionary representation as social and cultural critique, using the lens of painter, sculptor, architect and activist. Gifts from alumni, friends and corporate partners help support these efforts.

JINENE THOMPSON, EdM '18

“An investment could help change a life. You can have a lasting impact on someone like me with even one donation.”

Jinene came to UB to pursue a master’s degree in education. Just 30 days after settling into her new Buffalo apartment, a fire broke out, displacing her and the other residents. She vividly remembers running from the building into thick black smoke, having time to grab only her laptop, backpack and coat. At UB, we know that students have full lives on top of their classes. That’s why the Graduate School of Education helped Jinene get through her ordeal and stay in school with UB Fund support designated for student emergencies.

The power of your investment

With your support, UB will be even greater. Even stronger. Even bolder. Together we will give more students life-changing scholarships, empower our faculty to think bigger and go further, and continue to make life better for our neighbors in Buffalo and beyond.
